

Fund Strategy & Outlook

The S&P Sharia TR Index rose by 9.4%. The rally was driven by the Banking and Petrochemical sectors.

Brent was up 15% in January, ending the month at USD 61.89/barrel. Bullish sentiments are supported by tightening supply and strict compliance from OPEC members. Saudi Arabia's output reached 10.2mn bpd in January, down from 10.55mn bpd in December. According to KSA's Energy Minister Khalid Al-Falih; "The impact of the reduction will trickle down into the global markets over the next few weeks while demand will start picking up at the end of the first quarter and into the second quarter". In our opinion, price volatility is a result of the US-China trade war and global economy slowdown fears, in addition to temporary oversupply to avoid a supply shortage following the US sanctions on Iran.

IMF lowered KSA's GDP growth forecast for 2019 to 1.8%, down from 2.4%, and it is pessimistic about oil prices over the next two years. It also raised next year's growth forecast to 2.1%, up 0.2% from a previous projection.

Saudi Arabia's non-oil business activity plunged to its lowest since Aug 2009 when the Index was first launched, according to the Emirates NBD PMI Index. The overall Index reading in January rose to 56.2 from 54.5 in December, driven by a surge in new orders and a subsequent rebound in both output and employment. The main reason behind new order acceleration was domestic demand, as export orders remained broadly flat m/m. Some of the growth in new orders is likely due to price discounting.

Saudi authorities noted that $107bn has been recovered from the anti-corruption crackdown. The funds are in the form of property, companies, cash and other assets surrendered by senior princes, ministers and top businessmen who were under investigation.

Data released by SAMA in December showed that credits to the private sector grew by 2.9% YoY while deposits rose by 2.6% YoY. Government reserves reached SAR 562.4bn (-10% MoM) while, foreign reserves remained stable YoY. Combined ATM/POS transactions grew by 4.0% YoY, supported by a spending surge in restaurants and transportation as well as the food and beverage segments. Cost of living increased by 2.2% YoY.

The Hassad Fund exhibited positive performance of 5.3% in January 2019, this was short of the benchmark by -4.1, mainly due to overweights and asset selections in healthcare and consumer staples sector.

The fund is invested in high-quality businesses across various sectors which we believe will attract inflows post Kingdom's inclusion in MSCI EM index in mid-2019. Commodity chemicals and banks represent the largest investment allocation. Our investments in petrochemicals are well positioned to benefit from stable global supply demand environment and wider product spreads, while our investments in Commercial Banks are best positioned for a higher interest rate environment. Additionally, our banks in the portfolio are well capitalized and sport a liquid balance sheet capable of supporting loan growth should credit demand in the country improve.
