

Fund Manager's Strategy & Outlook

The Saudi market had a strong performance in November with the S&P Saudi Sharia TR Index gaining 16.2% for a YTD gain of 7.7%. The Fund gained 12.3% during the month and is now down 2.1% YTD. Turnover gained significantly MoM with daily traded value averaging SAR 5.41billion. The success of Saudi Arabia's maiden international bond issuance gave confidence to local institutions and international investors.

Brent gained 4.5% in November to end the month at USD 50.47/barrel as OPEC announced that its members will reduce output by about 1.2mn bpd by January 2017, to cut its production to 32.5mn bpd, exempting Nigeria and Libya with Saudi Arabia cutting 486k barrels per day. Non OPEC members agreed on the 10th of December, to join the production cuts with 562k bpd. Russia promised to cut production by 300k bpd, Mexico by 100k bpd and Oman by 40k bpd. We believe that, if all the producers comply with their promises, the oil market will re-balance in the second half of 2017 and expect oil prices to remain high in the short term. US Shale supply is expected to increase at oil prices above USD 55 per barrel and hence oil prices are expected to remain range bound in a USD 50 to 60 per barrel band in the short term.

Positive developments were also seen on the domestic front. The government allocated SAR 100bn from its reserves to the PIF with an aim to diversify the Kingdom's investment portfolio and improve returns. The government also allocated SAR 100bn to settle some of its receivables to contractors and other entities. Additionally, the announcement from the Ministry of Municipal & Rural Affairs gave comfort as the actual fees came out to be significantly lower than the approved maximum ceiling.

All TASI sectors were up in November. Media, Cements and the Transportation sectors were among the top performing sectors gaining 66%, 27.2% and 26.9%, respectively. Banks & Petrochemicals underperformed gaining 12.5% and 15.6% respectively. The Investment Manager increased exposure to select Real Estate, and Consumer non- discretionary names during the month. Cash decreased to 26.5% at month end.

With stronger oil prices and renewed investor confidence, we believe the Saudi market will remain strong in the short term. The compliance to the promised production cuts by both OPEC and non OPEC countries will dictate the direction of oil prices. For the month of December, all eyes will be on the upcoming budget which might see deficit projections lower and flat to slightly higher spending compared to 2016. The Investment Manager is cautiously optimistic on the market in the short term.
